Correct usage of the em-dash & en-dash:

“There is a clutch of Mennonite women in traditional dress – small bonnets and long skirts.”

“After all, the Founders were men of the Enlightenment, fashioning a country out of new ideas — or out of old ones that they excavated from centuries of religious internment. ”

Correct usage of the semi-colon:

“All opinions are of equal worth. No voice is more authoritative than any others; some are just louder. ”

“Saturn was long thought to be the only ringed planet; however, this is now known not to be the case.”
